Alabama's Legislature.

Montgomery, Ala., 12.—The Democratic caucus of the house elects H. C. Armstrong, speaker and D. W. McIver, clerk. Both houses are organized and the governor's message in the state paper shows that the financial condition is good and the state institutions are in a prosperous condition. He refers to the flight of the State Treasurer Vincent and the great efforts made to capture him, which all proved futile, and urges the legislature to be prudent in legislation, and rather deprecates the idea of a reduction of the rate of the state tax. The university, agriculture college and insane hospital have been largely increased and the capacity nearly doubled. Of the donation of 4,600 acres of land for the benefit of the university, more than half have been located, schools have increased in number and efficiency from the increased appropriations of the last legislature. The blacks are given their full share of the schools according to population.

The parties had quarreled in the saloon, and Williams had knocked his assailant down, cutting a gash in his head. The man went out to the water trough to bathe the wound, when Williams fired at him, and the man returned the fire and shot Williams through the heart.

Delawore the water supply is deficient. In cold winters which occur over so much of our cattle raising country, it is difficult to induce animals to take a sufficient amount of water, holes cut through the ice soon freeze over and the weather is frequently so sovere that cattle will drink only a few swallows of water before they will leave to seek shelter from the cutting winds and when later in the day they try to obtain more water from the drinking holes obtain more water from the drinking holes that are frozen over. When ergotism prevails, watering should receive close attention. Ergotism can probably be entirely prevented by cutting hay before the seeds have formed. Both in Missouri and Illinois. I saw the clearest examples of this. Hay composed of the same kinds of grass cut upon the same land was free from ergot, or largely infected with it, according as it had been cut green or ripe. This matter is worthy of seriou consideration. Hay cut green is more digestible and in every way more valuble then that which is allowed to become ripe and the latter is much more liable to produce severe diseases such as indigestion, impaction and ergotism. This fatal disorder may therefore be prevent in the future by proper and careful management.
